THE OCEAN BEACH NEWS

A Booster for Ocean Beach, Point Loma, Mission Bay and Mission Beach

FOURTEENTH YEAR, No. 1 | OCEAN BEACH CALIFORNIA | FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1935 | PHONE, BAYVIEW 0741 | FIVE CENTS THE COPY

Starting 14th Year Community Service.

With this issue the Ocean Beach News starts on its fourteenth year of service to the beach section. During that time it has recorded the coming and going of many people and institutions. While every issue perhaps has not startled its readers with sensational happenings, yet the building of homes, schools, churches and a better community has been truthfully portrayed.

The local newspaper is a mirror of the city in which it is published and if there is little news, there is little activity, but when merchants, business people and the home folks are doing things, then we have an interesting newspaper to present the true picture of our town.

When our readers have matters of interest to our community, to talk about, we should like to have them write to the newspaper. These matters need not be in agreement with views of the editor but are welcome for publication, if of a constructive nature. No sensible man expects that his opinions are the opinions of all men. That differences of opinion exist is one of the good things of life. It would be extremely dull if one did not find diverging conclusions from the conflicting evidence upon which we endeavor to evolve the truth.

Ocean Beach and all San Diego county continues in the march of progress. Our people are satisfied with their lot here when they have a comfortable home and sufficient of the good things in life to keep them in good health, so let's continue to praise our many advantages and interest others in coming here to make their permanent home.

Sunset Cliffs Project Approved Again

The improvement of Sunset Cliffs park will soon be continued according to word received Monday from the WPA administration office at Broadway pier, San Diego. George White, local director has approved and forwarded to San Francisco for final approval his endorsement of the project, which was started just before the discontinuance of the SERA.

The work at Sunset Cliffs calls for building 2,400 feet of earth berms, grading for parking area, regrading paths, repairing bridges and fences and planting slopes to prevent soil erosion. It calls for employment of 49 men and will cost $6,362.00.

WHITE KING CARD PARTY BY OCEAN BEACH WOMAN'S CLUB

The Ocean Beach Woman's club will give a dessert bridge for the benefit of their building fund on November 8th at 12:30 p. m. at which time they hope to build up a fair amount to add to the fund they are now accumulating toward a new clubhouse.

Each patron of the party will receive enough White King soap products to more than pay for their price of attendance. Reservations may be made by calling BV 0972-J, BV 0427-R or BV 1173-M.

SAN DIEGO PRESS CLUB TO PUBLISH COUNTY HISTORY

An advisory board has been named to assist in the compilation of the forthcoming History of San Diego County by the San Diego Press club, Carl H. Heilborn, managing director of the club and supervising editor of the history, announced last week.

The history will contain a general review of the county and its cities and towns and a section devoted to biographical sketches of outstanding citizens who have taken part in the development of the community.

The volume, which is to be published next spring, is intended as a permanent record of the county and its people and as a reference work for the use of the newspapers, schools, libraries, and individuals.

Would Tap Oil Pools For Old Age Funds

A commendable move is being made by Ralph W. Wallace, member of the state legislature, that will insure revenue to the State of California so that it may continue to have funds available to meet a prospective shortage in the old age pension funds. Most lawmakers look for another method of taxation when they need funds but Wallace is figuring on tapping oil pools that are now being drained by private monopolies.

State and county officials in conference here last week disclosed that old age pension funds were low and that a special session of the California legislature might be necessary to deal with the problem.

Wallace proposes to use the proceeds from undeveloped state oil lands for the old age pension funds. He pointed out that a huge oil pool is known to exist under the ocean and tidelands off Huntington Beach, estimated by prominent geologists to be worth more than a hundred million dollars.

Legislation to put his plan into effect is being prepared and will be pushed vigorously if a special session of the legislature is called, Wallace said. Under his plan no wells would be drilled on the beaches but whip-stocked slantwise into the pool from back on the shore. This is a new method of drilling just discovered. At present the Huntington Beach oil pool is being steadily drained by private wells on the shore line and the people of California, the real owners, are losing millions of dollars yearly, Wallace charged.

Looking at Our Files of 12 Years Ago

As we look back over the files of September and October, 1923, we find a number of names that are familiar to our present readers. See if you remember any of them:

Fred H. Kraft bought out the C. H. Colby drug store which has been built into a fine institution since that time.

Ralph D. Crapo succeeded C. H. Owen to the Ocean Beach Cleaners. (Mr. Crapo is now in the real estate business in Mt. Pleasant, Michigan.)

Ocean Beach school started the 1923 fall term with Miss Kate Spani, principal; teachers, Miss Lois Hattel, Rose Georgia, Lola Van Kirk, Jean Hopson, Helen Sylvester, Mrs. Anna Mulville, Mrs. Stevenson, Miss Mildred Harrah, Miss Elg, Florence Sylvester, Helen Salee.

And what do you think of this—A strong protest was filed by E. H. Dowell of the Federated Trades and Labor Council, against the lack of adequate comfort stations at the beach. (We have only been complaining about this matter for 25 years or so now, but San Diego city council cannot see that we need more facilities in this line).

Warren-Walker School

The children and teachers of the Warren-Walker school enjoyed a Hallowe'en program and party Thursday afternoon. Appropriate stories, poems, songs, games and contests provided the entertainment.

Dainty cookies representing jack-o'lanterns were served for refreshments.

The activities of the kindergarten group have centered around the Hallowe'en story "The Cat and the Pumpkin". Bobby Connelly has proved to be the most efficient in oral story telling. An interesting dramatization of this story was presented Thursday.

The Warren-Walker school is happy to welcome to its faculty Mrs. Wm. Jack Stone.

Edgar Mohan of Pacific Beach and Robin Haskin of San Diego who have been absent because of illness have returned to school.

Lomans Win 14-13 Contest With Grossmont

"Every man in every play, Fighting all the time."

True to the words of their fight song, every man playing harder than he ever had before, the Point Loma High football squad defeated the champion Grossmont High team 14-13 last Friday on the Grossmont field Point Loma's victory marked the termination of Grossmont's long winning streak of 22 games.

The fighting Lomans piled up an early lead, tallying twice in the second quarter. The first score came when Tichenor, Loman quarter, knocking at the Grossmont door, fumbled; Shreve, Loman end, fell on the ball for a neat gain of about 4 yards, placing the ball on the Grossmont 1 yard line, whence Fullback Lutes soon plunged over. Tichenor's attempted conversion was good. The second Loman touchdown came on a break. Lutes' punt was fumbled and Shreve again recovered on the Foothillers' 6. Lutes scored in 2 plays, and then Tichenor kicked the point which was to decide the winner. Score: Point Loma, 14; Grossmont, 0.

The Grossmont men returned for the second half angered and full of fight. In the third quarter, Westbrook, Grossmont halfback, standing on his own 34, heaved a 25 yard pass to Gardner, who tallied unmolested. Hinkle converted. Westbrook, in the fourth period, scored on a beautiful broken field run of 50 yards, for the final score, Hinkle's try-for-point, luckily for Point Loma, was wide.

BOY'S GLEE CLUB

The boy's glee club, under the guarding wing of Mr. Green, is planning an educational trip to the Exposition in the near future. The trip is for the purpose of inspecting the large outdoor organ. Another, and probably the main reason will be to hear the Exposition Negro chorus under the direction of Mr. Garner.

As most of you know this year Pt. Loma has a senior quartet again.

The members are as follows:

B. Tichenor	1st tenor
E. Bryans	2nd tenor
A. Hartvigsen	baritone
T. Woodward	bass

The senior quartet will sing a few numbers in the coming music assembly. This assembly will present a new and unusual feature in the form of a bass viol solo by David Sterne. He will play the celebrated "Largo" by Handel. David is a member of the boy's glee this semester.

There will also be a piccolo solo by David Bryant (glee club) and oboe solo by Mack Graham (orchestra) and a baritone horn solo by Thad Brown also of the orchestra.

COLLIER PARK NEEDED

Survey of the crowded conditions at Point Loma high school will be made sometime this week by the Board of Education. It is expected they will decide what adjustments have to be made for an immediate and long term building program.

The promised shop building, if started, will take care only of this year's needs, at the rate the school enrollment is growing.

At present there is a part of the art classes in the hall, English classes in a former office, another class in a former restroom and part of a hall partitioned off to make a sewing room.

The advisability of building a junior high school in Collier park can be seen readily. It would give two adequate buildings, instead of one patched, makeshift one.

FRANCES BOX DESIGNS SEAL

A school seal has been approved by the senior class at Point Loma high school. Rings will be made from the official seal. Transcripts, diplomas, official papers, should bear the seal print.

Frances Box, June '34, former art student at Point Loma high school, designed the seal. Robert Ziegler, June '36, adapted it.

The seal shows the high school entrance, leaving space for class numerals.

Stationery may be embossed.

The seal design will be submitted to the other classes for approval, which is expected to be unanimous.

POINTERS AND ISLANDERS TANGLE TODAY, 3 P. M.

The Point Loma High school football team meets the Coronado High team today 3:00 p. m., on Ross field. Having gained new confidence and fire from upsetting Grossmont last week, the Point Loma team will be eager for new scalps; and they should gain satisfaction.

PROPER FOOD SAID THE CURE OF MOST ALL ILLS

Myron Insko was chairman of Wednesday's Kiwanis luncheon with Paul O. Sampson, experienced dietician, as speaker for the day. Mr. Sampson said he had made a 46-year study of the proper foods for various ailments of the human anatomy and it was his belief that most chronic disorders could be avoided by the use of proper food combinations. He said the American and English peoples, especially Americans, eat too much refined food, about ninety percent, and that we all should make it a regular practice to eat wholesome foods, and the part especially which contains the earth salts. These earth salts are the valuable mineral elements which go to make up perfect digestion. a pure blood stream and other necessary adjuncts of a healthy body. The speaker gave much good advice to his listeners who were interested in his information.

Arthur G. Maples, supervisor of Safeway stores. was a guest of Milton Lancaster.

OPEN MEETING LECTURE ON ETHIOPIA

The next meeting of the Ocean Beach Woman's club will be Thursday, November 14, and it will be an open meeting to which the public generally is invited.

Mrs. Don Horner is chairman of the day and has announced for her speaker, Dr. C. F. Falk of La Jolla, who will tell about Ethiopia and her people.

Come at 2 p. m. and hear this interesting country discussed.

TOURIST TRAVEL HERE CONTINUES SHOW INCREASE

Despite the fact that the heavy volume of American summer tourist travel in other resort areas of the country ends during the latter part of August, out-of-state motor vacationists arriving in California during September showed an increase of 18.5 per cent over the corresponding month a year ago, according to official figures of the State department of agriculture filed with the All-Year club.

Community Chest Drive for $237,547

One of the largest and most enthusiastic groups of volunteer workers ever to engage in a civic undertaking here began solicitation Monday for the joint Community Chest campaign and Red Cross Roll Call. The campaign will continue until November 20.

The campaign organization, according to Thomas O. Scripps, general chairman; Douglas Young, Chest president, and R. King Kauffman, chairman local Red Cross chapter, is imbued with determination to achieve the objective in the shortest possible time. The goal this year is $237,547, appreciably larger than last year, but embracing a total of 35 agencies as against 32 in 1934.

With approach of the campaign, civic leaders call attention of the public to President Roosevelt's recent radio talk in which he appealed to the nation at large for a generous response to the appeal for the care of the needy—"a sadly distressed segment of our population, destitute and unprovided for—whom we as good neighbors must assist to the extent of our ability."

This year one appeal for support will be made on behalf of the 34 Community Chest agencies, together with the Red Cross. It is emphasized that all of these important agencies are united again for the first time in several years, thus presenting a solid front.

The goal in this year's joint Chest campaign and Red Cross Roll Call is $237,547.31, or a little more than $1 per capita. The dates are Nov. 4 to 20.

Civic leaders who are directing the joint appeal point out that it is good business to support the movement because it has combined many appeals in one, thereby saving time and increasing efficiency; and that it is good citizenship because those in a position to help the less fortunate are given an opportunity to share in a community-wide responsibility.

Also emphasized by campaign leaders is the fact that federal and state governments having withdrawn from welfare and relief activites, the problem of maintaining and supporting purely local social agencies is entirely to local communities.

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE AND PAGENT

The American Legion Armistice Day association, announce the parade and grand pagent to be the biggest and best in the history of San Diego since that great day some seventeen years ago. The parade will start promptly at 12 noon, Monday, November 11, from the foot of Broadway proceeding to 15 street, up 15 to the Stadium where it will pass in review. Then promptly at 2 p. m. the annual football game will start, it will be between the U. S. Submarine team and the San Diego Town team and promises to be a good game as the San Diego team is composed mostly of players of last years Padra Serra's Legion team.

This year the price of admission will include a review of the parade in the Stadium, the football game and the Exposition. Tickets will be on sale at various stores in the city and may be had at the Ocean Beach News office.

In the evening at the organ ampitheatre there will be a reenactment of the signing of the Armistice, a spectacle never to be forgotten.

From all reports the number and beauty of the floats that will be in the line of march cannot at this time be anticipated so it behooves all of San Diego to be on hand to see them.

20 Per Cent of Voters Here Cast Ballots

The Mattoon relief bonds of $2,600,000 were voted by a 3-1 majority in the county, the latest report received being 27,990 for the bonds and 8,119 against them. The Mattoon Settlement committee still have a real task ahead, in making settlement of $14,000,000 indebtedness with the bonds voted.

Ocean Beach people voted only about twenty percent of the registration. Six precincts giving 280 for the bonds and 225 against. These precincts voted as follows:

Precinct	NO	YES
13	29	41
14	36	58
15	50	41
16	28	30
17	39	46
18	43	64

Areas that were vitally effected turned out better and voted for the bonds. La Jolla reported 1216 for bonds and only 21 against, better than 60-1 for relief. La Mesa, Spring Valley, Lemon Grove and those sections voted heavily for the bonds. Escondido, Oceanside and the north end of the county gave the bonds only a small majority.

Two-thirds of the vote was necessary to carry the bond issue.

Nearly $243,000 to Zoo No Money for Beach

The News office received word from San Francisco, Monday that one of the projects released for immediate execution was the improvement of Zoological Gardens in Balboa park, constructing houses and enclosures for animals, landscaping, etc., to cost $242,869.00.

Now, we're not saying the Zoo is not a great attraction in the park, and that it is not of educational advantage, but we do think, that recreation facilities for the humans should be placed ahead of enlarged quarters for the animals. Very necessary rest rooms have been urgently requested at Ocean Beach at foot of Niagara avenue and also over on the south side of Mission bay several times in the past six years but for one reason or another no money could be found to go ahead with these worthy improvements.

The monkeys and hyenas cannot look out for themselves when caged up in a zoo, but the boys, girls and vacationists who patronize our beaches are forced to take care of their own requirements, though it is found mighty inconvenient at times.

Hoare Promises Britain Will Not Fight With Italy—Laval's Peace Efforts Continued—President Roosevelt Returns to Washington.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

SIR SAMUEL HOARE, British foreign secretary, assured parliament and the world that Great Britain has no intention of fighting Italy and would not alone apply military sanctions against that nation. He held out strong hopes that the war in Africa could be settled without resort by the league to extreme measures. His speech was plainly an invitation to Italy to talk peace terms.

Sir Samuel Hoare

Denying that the government's policy is hostile to Fascism, Sir Samuel said:

"We have not the least intention of interfering in the domestic affairs of other people."

"The unbroken solidarity of the empire is behind the government's policy," he said. "Let those prophets of misfortune who have marked the empire down for decay and dissolution observe this fact of overwhelming importance."

Hoare hinted at British isolation from continental affairs if the league collapses.

Next day Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin warmly endorsed all that Hoare and Capt. Anthony Eden have done at Geneva. He deprecated even the use of the word war, but called for a rearming of the empire, saying: "In the interests of world peace it is essential our defensive services should be stronger than they are today."

Baldwin announced the adjournment of parliament on October 25 and the election of a new parliament on November 14. The campaign already is under way and is lively, with the international situation furnishing the main issues. The Labor party accuses the government of delaying action in the Italo-Ethiopian embroglio until too late to prove really effective, and impugns its motive in seeking rearmament.

MUSSOLINI made one conciliatory gesture toward Great Britain when he agreed to withdraw a division of troops from Libya; and at the same time he urged that France and Britain make quick reply to his peace conditions. But it became known the troops were to be moved from Libya to Tripoli, where they would be almost as much a menace to Egypt; and the duce's peace terms were so drastic that there was no prospect that they would be accepted by anyone concerned. They included disarmament of Ethiopia, an international protectorate over the central regions and an Italian protectorate over the remainder.

Addressing the foreign affairs committee of the French chamber of deputies, Premier Laval promised he would seek only a compromise that would be fully acceptable to the League of Nations. He told the committee that France's battleships would steam immediately to the assistance of Britain if the latter's fleet was atttacked by Italy.

WHILE Premier Pierre Laval of France was still trying desperately to find a way of settling the Italo-Ethiopian quarrel that would be acceptable to both Great Britain and Italy—apparently without regard to Ethiopia's real interests—fifty-two members of the League of Nations declared a boycott on all Italian goods and an embargo on various key exports to that country. The boycott binds these nations to prohibit importation of "all goods consigned from and grown, produced or manufactured in Italy or in Italian possessions from whatever place they arrive."

Pierre Laval

If rigidly enforced, this would cut off about two-thirds of the export trade upon which Italy depends in getting funds for prosecution of the war in Africa. The countries applying the sanctions agree to aid one another in compensating losses by increased trade facilities, credits, cash and loans if possible, and discriminating against league members such as Austria and Hungary which continue to trade with Italy.

Austria, Hungary and Albania spoke against the sanctions. Switzerland, which seeks to preserve her traditional neutrality, was silent. Some South American republics made complicated reservations.

It was decided that the sanctions should be put in force on October 31, and Laval thus had time to continue his peace efforts. These seemed to center on a way to "legalize" Italian occupation of that part of northern Ethiopia which Mussolini's troops have seized and to arrange for Italy's partial control over the entire empire.

GEN. RUDOLFO GRAZIANI'S forces in southern Ethiopia were reported to have won several important victories in their advance toward Harrar and the railway. They captured some towns despite desperate resistance by the natives, and took many prisoners. The main movement in that region was up the Webbe Shibeli river. The Ethiopians were repeatedly dispersed by aerial bombs.

In Tigre province, on the north, the Italians were consolidating their positions and preparing for another big thrust toward Addis Ababa. Their line there extended nearly 70 miles from Adigrat through Aduwa to the holy city of Aksum.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, deeply tanned and in fine spirits, returned to the White House, his holiday tour ended. When he landed from the cruiser Houston at Charleston, S. C., he told a big crowd gathered to welcome him that the country is on its way back to prosperity under the planned economy of his administration, "and don't let anybody tell you differently."

At an informal press conference just before he left the cruiser, the President was asked to comment on the "impending collapse" of his drive to put three and a half million employables on relief to work by November 1. He replied that November 30 was 39 days off and that November 1 had never been set as the deadline, and that he had been very careful to say that substantially three and a half million persons would be put to work. If three million are at work by November 30 he said he would be satisfied with the four-billion-dollar program, and that it could not then be considered to have fallen down.

One of Mr. Roosevelt's first appointments in Washington was for a talk with Secretary of State Hull on the European situation.

FOR the third time in his career Mackenzie King is now prime minister of Canada, following the victory of the Liberal party at the polls. Richard B. Bennett and his Conservative cabinet resigned and King was called on to form the new government, which he did at once. He himself was sworn in as prime minister, president of the privy council and secretary of state for external affairs. Thomas A. Crerar of Winnipeg was made minister of mines, immigration and colonization, interior and Indian affairs. Charles A. Dunning of Montreal is the new minister of finance and W. D. Euler of Kitchener has the trade and commerce portfolio. All the cabinet positions except that of agriculture were filled at once.

Mackenzie King

The resignation of W. D. Herridge as minister to Washington was accepted and became immediately effective. The department of national revenue announced cancellation of dumping duties on the following commodities entering Canada: Plums, prunes, radishes, spinach, and peaches.

ONE of the government's much publicized efforts to punish alleged income tax evaders of Louisiana failed when a jury in Federal court at New Orleans brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Abraham L. Shushan, one of the close associates of the late Senator Long. The prosecution claimed he owed $71,000 in taxes. The verdict was greeted with loud cheers by the crowd in the courtroom, and in the ensuing confusion several news photographers were beaten up by former members of Long's bodyguard—which seems to be a habit in Louisiana.

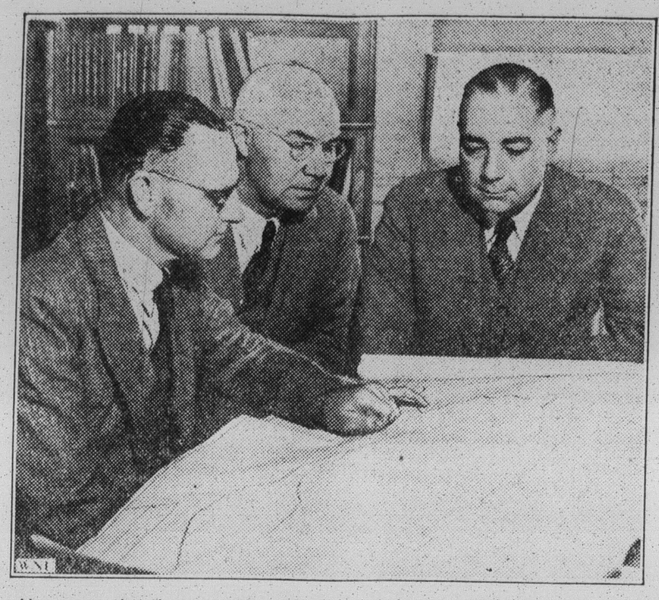
NEARLY 5,000 men and women from all parts of the United States gathered in Chicago and held a national convention of the Townsend plan, which, as most people know, would give every person sixty years of age a $200 per month income if the person agreed to spend it all within the month, did not work or have an income all told of more than $2,400 a year.

The elderly California doctor who devised the plan was present, and the delegates seriously undertook the work of formulating a campaign to compel the adoption of the plan at the coming session of congress.

FIRST of the big eastern railroads to seek reorganization under the amended bankruptcy act is the New York, New Haven and Hartford, which serves one of the most densely populated sections of the country. Its petition was filed because it was unable to meet taxes of $4,000,000 and interest of $2,200,000.

The railroad had sought another loan from the government, but the Interstate Commerce commission rejected the plea. The company had cleaned its treasury of collateral to secure loans of $7,699,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, $3,531,000 from the Railroad Credit corporation, and $16,000,000 from banks. The Pennsylvania system, which controls about 15 per cent of New Haven stock, did not appear ready to guarantee a further extension of credit.

PROJECT CHIEFS TALK IT OVER



Here are the three gentlemen who will be in charge of California's $170,000,000 Central Valleys Water Project which will start shortly. Left to right are Walker R. Young, ace construction engineer for the Federal Bureau of Reclamation who will head the engineering staff, J. N. Savage, the bureau's chief designing engineer, and L. M. McClellan, chief electrical engineer. Young, who supervised construction of Boulder Dam, will establish headquarters at Sacramento about November 1.

State Delegate

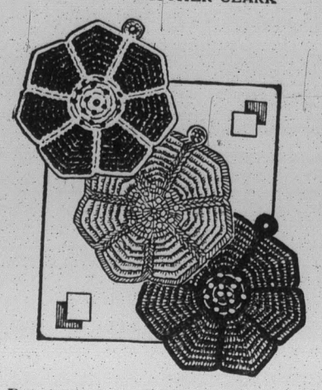
CROCHETED FLOWERS FOR POT HOLDERS

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



Pot holders crocheted with heavy string are very practical and when made in flower forms are really lovely. They are heavy enough to protect the hands without requiring padding. These three pot holders are crocheted in the same manner but in different combinations of red, yellow and green. The petals are crocheted separately o. one color and then slip stitched together and finished in contrasting colors. Size when finished about six inches.

Instruction sheet No. 731 with illustrations and instructions how to crochet these holders, also how to arrange the colors, will be mailed to you for 10 cents. Material can also be bought from this department. Information and price are given when mailing instructions.

RUBBING EYES DANGEROUS; USE SOOTHING LOTION

Mascara, eye shadow and brow pencil if judiciously applied spell glamor, but they're not the whole story when the eye question comes up—as it does every time you look in the mirror.

The lashes, lids and brows are just a frame for the eyes themselves. You'll find that if a picture is scratched or dusty it loses much of the beauty for which it was created. No matter, then, if the frame is of old ivory or solid gold—the picture is spoiled.

Eyes can be dusty, tired, weary and reddened. Then, no matter how delicately you frame your eyes, the picture, here too, is spoiled.

When the eyes feel and look all blurry, a few drops of lotion help to soothe and refresh them.

A lotion has no strengthening effect—go to a good oculist if you feel in need of that—but it does lessen the danger of eye infection because it removes irritating particles, and it's safe to use. Speaking of safety—if you're fond of your eyes, don't rub them. Rubbing your eyes is just the worst thing you can do to them and it leaves them an unbecoming red without giving any real relief at all. That's where a good lotion is somebody's gift to eye-conscious humanity.

Toys Made of Gold

Toys valued at more than $5,000,000 were shown in an exhibition of "Children Throughout the Ages" in London, England, recently. Two gold rattles which once delighted the prince of Wales, and a fair-haired doll companion of Queen Mary in her baby days attracted much attention. Musical dolls given by Queen Victoria to the prince of Wales and the duke of York when they were babies; Queen Elizabeth's and Oliver Cromwell's christening robes, and a skirt worn by Charles I when he was two, were also shown.

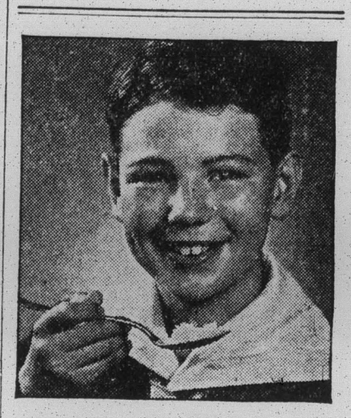
Forgotten Hospital, Complete, Is Found

Forgotten for half a century, a hospital has been found on the seacoast of Denmark, and government officials are considering what to do with it. It was built in 1879 for cholera patients, there having been a cholera epidemic in Europe and a recurrence was expected. Soon after the opening a sailor believed to have had the dread disease, was admitted. He proved to have nothing worse than measles. No other patients came, and the place was closed and forgotten.

A young journalist found the hospital, with everything complete, from beds ready to use, to medicines and salt cellars containing salt put there 54 years ago. The discoverer has suggested that it be converted into a vacation resort for poor children of Copenhagen.—Montreal Herald.



EATS OATMEAL TO HELP KEEP FIT

● It may be one of Nature's lowest cost foods, but lucky is the boy or girl who gets it for breakfast every morning.

Few things keep them back like a lack of this protective food element.

So give everyone Quaker Oats every morning. Because in addition to its generous supply of Vitamin B for keeping fit,* it furnishes food-energy, muscle and body-building ingredients. For about ½c per dish.

Start serving it tomorrow for a 2-weeks test. Quaker Oats has a wholesome, nutlike, luscious appeal to the appetite. Flavory, surpassingly good. All grocers supply it.

FORTUNES WAITINC YOU

If all the hundreds of thousands who believe they are being illegally restrained from enjoying the benefits of ancient estates were suddenly to have their claims recognized, between five and six billions of dollars' worth of the most valuable property in the important cities of the world would change hands overnight! For, according to these claimants, some of the biggest skyscrapers are but squatters on their property. Involved prominently in their calculations are such well-known landmarks as Central park, the Post Office building, the Empire State building and most of Wall Street in New York city; the site of San Francisco; the chief street of Birmingham, Ala.; the main stem of Wilmington, Del.; and the business sections of both Baltimore and Philadelphia. Nearly all claims of this kind have been declared invalid by the courts, but the heirs still refuse to lose hope.—Mary Margaret McBride in Cosmopolitan.

Evens Up

There are strong, silent men, but if you ever meet a strong silent woman it is usually one who has married a man who talks incessantly.

DOCTORS KNOW

Mothers read this:

A cleansing dose today; a smaller quantity tomorrow; less each time, until bowels need no help at all.

The answer is simple, and it's the answer to all your bowel worries if you will only realize it: many doctors and hospitals use liquid laxatives.

If you knew what a doctor knows, you would use only the liquid form. A liquid can always be taken in gradually reduced doses. Reduced dosage is the secret of any real relief from constipation.

Ask a doctor about this. Ask your druggist how very popular liquid laxatives have become. They give the right kind of help, and right amount of help. The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara — both natural laxatives that can form no habit, even in children. So, try Syrup Pepsin. You just take regulated doses till Nature restores regularity.

Quick, Complete Pleasant ELIMINATION

Let's be frank. There's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste matters that cause acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts—your intestines must function.

To make them move quickly, pleasantly, completely, without griping. Thousands of physicians recommend Milnesia Wafers. (Dentists recommend Milnesia wafers as an efficient remedy for mouth acidity).

These mint flavored candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly in accordance with the directions on the bottle or tin, then swallowed, they correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source and at the same time enable quick, complete, pleasant elimination.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48 wafers, at 35c and 60c respectively, or in convenient tins containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately an adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores carry them. Start using these delicious, effective wafers today.

Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letter head.

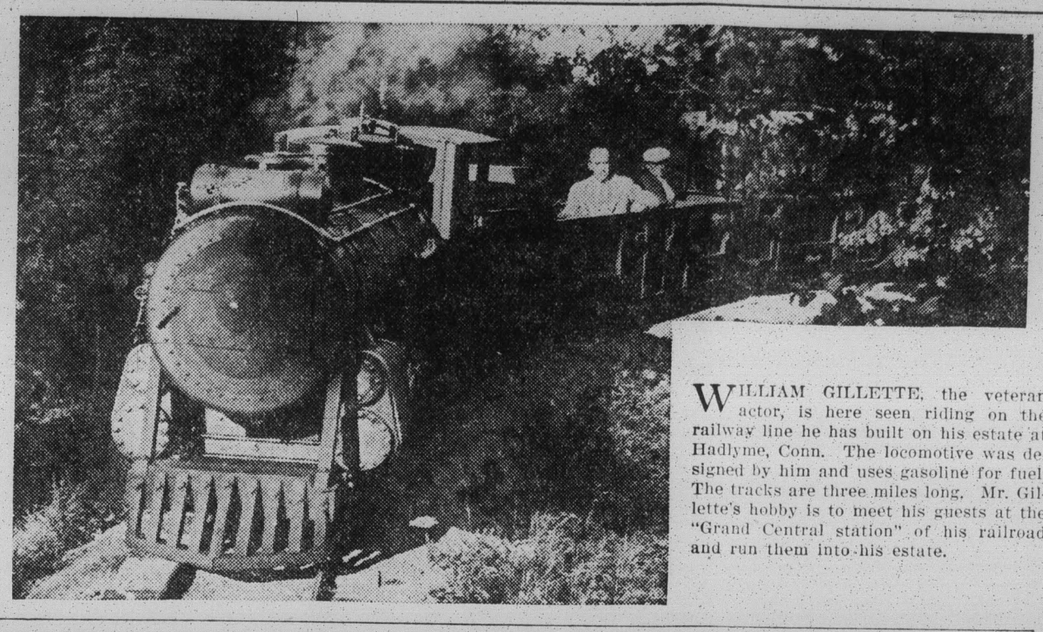
Veteran Actor Turns Railway Magnate



WILLIAM GILLETTE, the veteran actor, is here seen riding on the railway line he has built on his estate at Hadlyme, Conn. The locomotive was designed by him and uses gasoline for fuel. The tracks are three miles long. Mr. Gillette's hobby is to meet his guests at the "Grand Central station" of his railroad and run them into his estate.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

LIGHTFOOT AND PADDY BECOME PARTNERS

THE instant Lightfoot the Deer saw Paddy the Beaver he knew that, for the time being at least, there was no danger. He knew that Paddy is one of the shyest of all the little people of the Green Forest and that when he is found working in the daytime it means that he has been undisturbed for a long time. Otherwise he would work only at night.

Paddy saw Lightfoot almost as soon as he stepped out on the bank. He kept right on swimming with the branch of a poplar tree until he reached his food pile, which, you know, is in the water. There he forced the branch down until it was held by other branches already sunken in the pond. This done, he swam over to where Lightfoot was watching. "Hello, Lightfoot!" he exclaimed. "You are looking handsomer than ever. How are you feeling these fine autumn days?"

"That's Bad News, Lightfoot. I'm Sorry to Hear It."

"Anxious," replied Lightfoot. "I am feeling terribly anxious. Do you know what day this is?"

"No," replied Paddy, "I don't know what day it is and I don't particularly care. It is enough for me that it is one of the finest days we've had for a long time."

"I wish I could feel that way," said Lightfoot wistfully. "I wish I could feel that way, Paddy, but I can't. No, sir, I can't. You see, this is the first of the most dreadful days in all the year for me. The hunters started looking for me before Mr. Sun was really out of bed. At least one hunter did and I don't doubt there are others. I fooled that one, but from now to the end of the hunting season there will not be a single moment of daylight when I will feel absolutely safe."

Paddy crept out on the bank and chewed a little twig of poplar thoughtfully. Paddy says he can always think better if he is chewing something. "That's bad news, Lightfoot. I'm sorry to hear it. I certainly am sorry to hear it," said Paddy. "Why anybody wants to hunt such a handsome fellow as you are I cannot understand. My, but that's a beautiful head of horns you have!"

"They are the best I've ever had, but do you know, Paddy, I suspect that they may be one of the reasons I am hunted so," replied Lightfoot, a little sadly. "Good looks are not always to be desired. Have you seen any hunters around here lately?"

Paddy shook his head. "Not a single hunter," he replied. "I tell you what it is, Lightfoot, let's be partners for a while. You stay right around my pond. If I see or hear or smell anything suspicious I'll warn you. You do the same for me. Two sets of eyes, ears and noses are better than one. What do you say, Lightfoot?"

"I'll do it," replied Lightfoot.

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Would you be kind enough to settle an argument between my wife and me? I say a person with great talent and a genius are one and the same thing, while my wife says there is a vast difference between the two. Who is right, and why?

Yours truly,
WRIGHT INGPAD.

Answer: Your wife is right. The difference between talent and genius is that talent gets paid every Saturday.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I bought a horse yesterday at a sale, and drove him home. He kept stopping every few minutes. Today I took him out again and he did the same thing. What do you think is wrong with him?

Sincerely,
KEN TUCKKIE.

Answer: He is probaby deaf and is afraid he won't hear you say whoa, so he justs stops to listen.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you tell me what is meant by a crazy bone?

Truly yours,
U. MER.

Answer: A crazy bone is a dollar spent foolishly.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

This morning I tried to see how long I could stand on my head. After three minutes I had to give up because the blood rushed to my head. When I stand on my feet how is it the blood doesn't rush there?

Yours truly,
CON. TORTIONISTT.

Answer: Your feet are not empty.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am an artist. I entered a contest but my painting did not get a prize. The men who judged the paintings were not artists. Do you think it possible for men to tell a good or bad painting when they can't paint one themselves.

Truly yours,
CHAS. KALE.

Answer: Sure, they can. I can tell a bad egg and I never laid one.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Every time I take a railroad trip I have an argument with the train conductor about sticking my head out of the window. I am an American citizen and I always pay for my tickets, and I object to this kind of treatment. I have a right to put my head out the train window, haven't I?

Sincerely,
ANN. R. KIST.

Answer: Of course you have a perfect right to put your head out of the train window. The only reason the conductors say anything to you about it is that they want you to realize that in case the train passes over a bridge and your head is sticking out and your head damages any of the iron-work on the bridge you'll have to pay for it.

LOVE'S BEAMS

By ANNE CAMPBELL

LIKE a flame burning
Steady and bright,
True love and yearning
Shine through my night.

My ship would flounder,
Lost in life's sea;
Storms would break 'round her
Relentlessly,

If the bright beacon
Love's lighthouse throws
Should ever weaken,
Should lose its rose.

Searchlight enduring,
Steadfastly fling
Love beams, insuring
Safe journeying!

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

A FEW DESSERTS

A MEAL is unfinished without something in sweets or a made dessert to end the meal.

Adam's Cream Pie.

Scald one cupful of milk, add one cupful of sugar and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt. Mix two teaspoonfuls of corn starch with a little cold milk; add to the scalded milk, stirring constantly. Cook until smooth; then pour on two well-beaten eggs mixed with a cupful of cream; pour into a pastry lined tin and sprinkle with cinnamon. Bake until firm in the center. Remove at once from the oven and serve cold.

Steamed Cherry Pudding.

Drain canned cherries from the sirup. Make a batter of one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and milk to mix into a drop batter. Butter pudding cups and add a tablespoonful of the mixture, then a tablespoonful of the cherries—a bit of juice with them will not matter. Cover with another spoonful of batter, leaving plenty of room in the cup for rising. Set the cups into hot water, cover closely and boil fifteen minutes. Use the juice lightly thickened for the sauce, adding a little butter.

Orange Rounds.

Cut rounds from rich pastry and bake. Put together with orange filling prepared as follows: Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add five tablespoonfuls of sugar, the juice of one orange and half of the grated rind. Beat in the yolks of three eggs, stirring constantly, add two tablespoonfuls of finely chopped or grated candied orange peel and two tablespoonfuls of chopped candied pineapple, stir and cook until the filling is thick enough to spread. Use as filling for two rounds of the pastry.

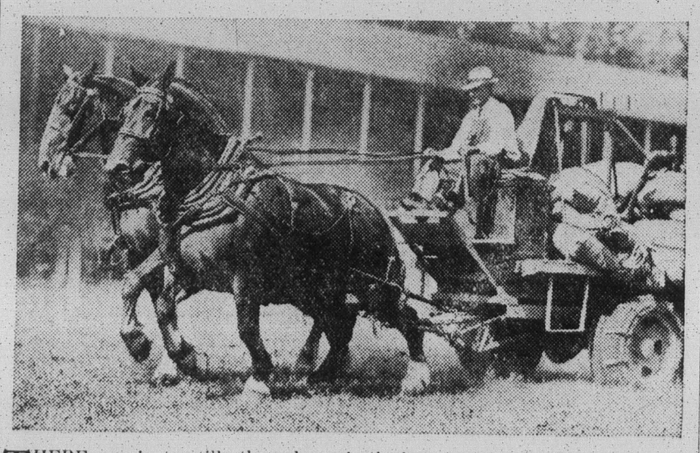
Equine Giants Win Championship



THERE are giants, still—these days—in the horse world—great one-ton giants that still bear burdens for us, just as man's oldest, most useful friend has always done. And a new world's heavyweight championship record was made in the work horse world, at Hillsdale County fair, Michigan, recently when two giants, Rock and Tom, trained by Russell Sando of Piqua, Ohio, defeated the giant champions of the East and hauled a load of 25½ tons for 20 consecutive starts. A "dynamometer," operated by Michigan State college, was used to measure the pulls scentifically. Expert horsemen and engineers were all amazed at this record. Rock and Tom are here shown doing their stunt.

Take Great Precautions With Diamond Workers

Before workmen are engaged in the De Beers mines at Kimberley they must sign a contract for four months, which can be prolonged. During this period the workers are prohibited from leaving the mining district and must live in compounds without their wives. When the wives visit them, conversation may take place only behind wire gratings. Native shops on the compound supply all necessities. At the expiration of the contracts, the workers are kept until a thorough examination has been made. Kept in cells for four days, their hair is shaved and many other precautions taken.

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well - Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it — in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains . . . and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store — simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

P. T. A., HOPE OF THE "THREE R's"

The Parent-Teacher Association has become the hope of the "Three R's." It not only stands for education but it goes deeply into the welfare of the pupil. Children require strength and encouragement such as is sponsored by the P.-T. A. The future standards of life depend upon school room culture—the guide post on life's pathway. The parent is the closest ally to the teacher, and the two work famously together: the parent keeps a mental and physical check-up for a clean, moral equipment as an intellectual backing for the school room.

Education is the nation's biggest business. No civic system has a more valuable asset than education of the child. It must be remembered that children are individuals on whom finally must rest the task of working out their own salvation, and the responsibility of choosing their thoughts. And there is no better way to protect the young thought from evil than to help to keep it filled with right principles and wholesome ideas.

The original source of education was the home. The mother was the first teacher. Among the higher societies of men, however, another agency has arisen, the school. Education has become the co-operative business of the parent and teacher. Upon these two agencies devolves the function of transforming the raw material of human infancy into the finished product of useful, humane and right-minded men and women.

The National Congress of Parents and Teachers is an educational and social movement which unites parents, teachers, and all good citizens in each community in one great democratic organization, for the sole purpose of conserving and advancing the interests of America's greatest asset—children. The mental progress, the physical welfare, the spiritual unfolding and the social adjustment travel side by side in the effort of the schools and the parents. It was Macdonald who said: when we are out of sympathy with the young, then I think our work in this world is over.

The American Federation of Labor has met in annual convention again. For 55 years this mighty organization has called its delegates together in convention to weigh the important questions for labor betterment. It stands for equal rights, living wage and union principles in general. This convention just closed is an eye-opener. It settled some very vital questions concerning the Federation; such as a demand for a 30-hour week, using its economic strength and influence in Congress to make the Black-Connery 30-hour bill a national law. Together with this action the Federation comes out emphatically for a "labor party" candidate for president next year. Not merely a name on a ticket, but a mobilization movement to elect a labor president. It also calls for the concentration of $5,000,000,000 worth of union labor wages yearly back of a "buy union only" movement, and the mobilization of the 2,000,000 women of the trade-union auxiliaries into a cooperative effort to boycott nonunion goods. This radical movement promises some interesting action in politics and national affairs.

The present prevailing interest in the sporting arena, is football fun! Every week end from now until Christmas and New Years will have the attention of students, fans and umpires, attending this exciting "kicking" game. For more than thirty years predictions have annually been made as to the early demise of college football. During that time, however, the number of players has increased and the interest seems to be on the gain. There is no rallying point to create interest, yet decidedly football is not primarily a game of skill—just a rough and tumble, kicking exercise that seems to make all the attraction. It is always noisy around where the game is being played. The crowd sees and hears the bands, enjoys the mass singing, and thrills at the college yells and all of its pageantry. Passing in football this year has livened the contest and caused several upsets to proposed winners.

Traffic laws, down to date, are sufficiently important that anyone who is not minutely familiar with every detail, better take the time to study them before he or she ever again touches the steering wheel. It only takes a mere infraction of the law to get a bed in jail for thirty days for the reckless driver; this is but the minimum. The maximum is six months or a fine of $100 to $500 or both. The drunk driver or hit-and-run fiend is in line for losing his driver's license in the bargain. Members of California Highway Patrol are given added police authority to enforce any other law besides those in line of primary duty and to investigate traffic accidents and gather evidence for the Department of Motor Vehicles.

How little importance is placed on simple recreation or play—if you please! No one is too old to just forget dull care and become like as a playful child. It is appalling, how disinterested the average person is in providing play for the child—much less for himself; games, puzzles, golf, and contests that amuse. Down thru the centuries play has been regarded almost a waste of time by too many. Recreation and amusement is as important as proper food and sufficient clothing and shelter. The body and mind develop sluggishness and a dullness without the refreshing play and pastime that is invigorating and uplifting.

A recent picture appearing in a daily newspaper gave the governor of one of our prosperous states milking a cow. This might be compared with the spirit of Abraham Lincoln, whose pride never interferred with service, however humble the act may have been.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

"Theosophy, a religious Science" will be the subject under discussion at the forum lecture to be held at the Theosophical Headquarters, Point Loma, on Sunday, Nov. 3. The speaker will be LeFayette Plummer, and he will be assisted by Mrs. Hazel Minot, both of the headquarters staff.

Says Plummer, "The apparent discrepancies between religious teaching and the findings of science lies in the fact that the message of each has a peculiar bearing upon its own problems. Science appeals to the brain-mind and to the imagination, unless indeed, it be the spiritual science wherein are studied the mysteries of consciousness. Religion appeals to the emotional and spiritual natures of man, and it is the more practical when science can answer all questions, and when religion leaves no point unexplained, then the twain are united, and become one philosophy of life. Such is Theosophy, the modern exposition of the teachings of the Ancient Wisdom. It is science itself, for it explains all the phenomena of the universe, and it is religion itself, for it also explains man's place within that universe, his origin and destiny. Thus, it is an all-embracing philosophy of life."

POULTRY HELPS.

By E. E. Steele.

In the fall, winter and early spring roasting chickens and hens bring the highest prices, therefore that is the time to cull your laying flock.

I use the same method of selecting pullets for layers as for culling hens.

The pelvis bones must be straight and the distance of at least two fingers apart, and between the end of the breast bone and the pelvis there must be the space of at least three fingers and the abdomen must be soft and pliable, the bird must be alert; never select a bird that goes to roost early or one that stays on the roost late in the morning for a hen that is a good layer must be on the go for food all the time.

To get max mum production and have a minimum of disease in your breeders and layers—

1st.. Keep only select birds.
2nd. Feed proper feed.
3rd. Keep your birds in batteries.

The production of eggs is a process of transforming feeds into eggs and the hen is the machine, you feed her the raw material, she manufactures and produces the egg; if she is a first class machine and you feed her first class raw material of the proper quality and quantity you will get first class production, cheap feeds never ay.

Nature provides that the body requirements of the hen are taken care of first, the surplus feed then goes into the making of the egg.

Under the highly specialized conditions of commercial egg and market poultry production in California you cannot expect a paying production from your birds unless you have a working knowledge of the principles of nutrition.

Poultry feeding should be based on the food requirements of the bird, the nutritive value of the different feeds and a knowledge of how to use these for the particular purpose in view.

The bird needs much food for two main purposes:

1. As building material for constriction of new tissues and their products.

2. As a source of heat and energy.

Food is composed of six recognized groups of substances called nutrients —proteins, carbohydrates, fat, vitamins, minerals and water.

Protein is a group of very complex organic substances, which always contains carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and nitrogen and in addition, usually sulphur and phosphorus.

Carbohydrates contain only three chemical elements, carbon, hydrogen and oxygen, and the group includes the starches, sugars, pentosans and celluloses or crude fiber.

Fats are a compound of alcohol (usually glycerin) and fatty acids (stearic, palmitic and oleic acid) Like carbohydrates, fats contain only three elements, carbon, hydrogen and oxygen but they differ in oxygen content, carbohydrates contain between 49 and 54 per cent and fats only about 11 per cent. One part of fat yields as much energy as two and one quarter parts of carbohydrates this is due to the low oxygen content of fat.

The presence of oxygen indicates oxidation or burning has already taken place, the more oxygen content the less energy liberated on complete oxidation (burning to carbon dioxide and water).

In fattening carbohydrates and not fat are fed in excess because carbohydrates even in large quantities are easily digested, absorbed and transformed into fat. Fats are digested with difficulty and absorbed slowly.

Vitamins are; A, growth; B, antineuritic and growth; C, antiscorlutic (of little importance in poultry feeding); D. antirachitic; E, reproductive.

Mineral is needed for bone, in smaller proportions in all organs, tissues and fluids of the birds body and in hens for egg shells.

Calcium and phosphorus are needed for bone formation; calcium for egg shell, calcium is important in the blood, a necessary factor in coagulation (clotting). Calcium is a constituent of the white of eggs and of the phosphates of egg yolk.

Sodium is needed by all plant eaters to eliminate the excess of potassium.

Chlorides of sodium and potassium are needed as constituents of the body fluids and tissues.

Iodine is required in small quantities.

Silicon and sulphur for feathers.

Iron appears in the egg and is also important in the hemoglobin the chief oxygen carrier of the blood.

Minerals also aid in the processes of digestion, obsorption, distribution and excretion.

Water is a nutrient of utmost importance.

A good feeding schedule for laying hens. Evening feed, the exact amount of medium cracked corn that they will clean up and go on the roost with a full crop. Morning feed, rolled barley soaked in buttermilk over night, measure off (by measure not weight) one third the amount of corn you use for night feed, place the barley in crocks or wooden troughs, cover with buttermilk; after the birds go to roost place where they can get it as soon as they come off the roost in the morning.

After the barley is cleaned up, open the laying mash hoppers and keep laying mash before the birds all day also plenty of fresh water and fresh greens.

You can get dry milk or semi-solid and mix with water.

Use only the best laying mash, cheap mashes contain more crude fibre and less food value.

The Mission Beach Woman's club celebrated its ninth birthday last Friday at the clubrooms, Mrs. Harry Kennedy, the president, in the chair. Mrs. David Frazier, the guest of honor, gave a very interesting talk. Mrs. O. M. Van Dorston and Mrs. Della Johnson, told how the club was founded; Mrs. Lola B. Mock and Mrs. Mary Fair Werre, past presidents, gave interesting little talks, and they were all decorated with beautiful corsages, as were the other charter members present. A beautiful cake with candles in the club's colors lent festivity to the scene until its beauty was impaired when served with tea. Attention was called to the Christmas packages to be given the Indians, a regular custom of the club.

Interesting History Of California Counties

Believing that the thousands of tourists who annually motor over the state's great highway system would like to know how the counties they visit came by their names, Director of Public Works Earl Lee Kelly, at the request of Governor Frank F. Merriam, has had prepared from state records a series of brief stories of the origin and meaning of the names of the counties of California including a few salient facts about each county.

—Editor.

Lake County—Created May 20 1861. This county derived its name because of the many charming lakes within its borders.

This county presents enchanting scenery, offers opportunities in all lines of agricultural endeavor, proximity to the leading markets, is known as a land of highways and is one of the leading playgrounds in Northern California.

The high mountains surrounding the county probably acted as a barrier to the white man until the early forties, at which time a few Russians came from Fort Ross and Bodega, in what now is known as Sonoma county, to establish parts of this region for their czar. General Vallejo and his brother claimed title to a large grant of land in 1847. Soon a few other white pioneers settled and raised thousands of head of cattle, undisturbed by the 6,000 peaceful Indians who called this land home. However, the influx of people began to crowd the docile Indians and a few endeavored to establish rule over them, finally leading to much bloodshed.

Indian folklore and early California history do not reveal when this region experienced a gigantic volcanic upheaval. There are high mountains and peaks, numerous streams, scores of mineral springs, a dozen valleys and the largest lake of fresh water in the state. There are more mineral springs in Lake than in the countries of Europe, visited annually by 75,000 persons. Clear Lake, the Indian name for which is "Lupoyama," is one of the prettiest bodies of water in the world and covers an area of 84 square miles. Mount Konocti, known locally as "Uncle Sam," rises to a height of 3000 feet and almost divides the lake. Hunting and fishing lure the sportsman.

Lake has famous quicksilver mines which have yielded more than $4,000,000. Lake's leading crops in order of their importance are pears, walnuts, hay, grapes, barley and wheat. Live stock and lumber industries are prosperous. Population: 7,166: Area: 1238 square miles.

Lassen County—Created April 1, 1864. The name of this county was taken from Mount Lassen, the only active volcanic peak in the United States, which was named for Peter Lassen, a native of Switzerland, one of General Fremont's guides and a famous trapper, frontiersman and Indian fighter, who was killed by the piutes at the base of this mountain in 1859.

This county has an unusual history. Barely over the stage of pioneering compared with other counties, rail lines and highways now serve various districts, the lumbering industry is one of the greatest of its kind in the west, cattle and sheep raising are very important, and Lassen is a popular vacation land. The minimum elevation of the county is 3949 feet.

Peter Lassen, rugged adventurer, Isaac Roop, first territorial governor of Nevada, and Lieutenant John C. Fremont, youthful army officer, were the early pioneers. Lassen crossed the plains from Missouri in 1839 en route to Oregon. In 1844 he settled on his grant on Deer Creek. Three years later he brought another party out from Missouri and settled in Indian Valley, Plumas county. In 1855 he went to Honey Lake Valley where he lived until he was killed by Indians in 1859. Historic Lassen records relate:

"Believing themselves to be out of California, the settlers of Honey Lake Valley fought off Plumas county offcials who claimed jurisdiction over them. As a consequence Honey Lake Valley became a sort of 'No Man's Land,' harassed by savages on all sides and infested by outlaws. In 1856 the settlers, in the belief they were in western Utah, organized a territory about the size of Nevada and called it 'Nataqua.' Peter Lassen was elected surveyor and Isaac Roop recorder. Later the settlers joined those of the Carson Valley country in their efforts to organize a territory and call it Nevada. The government was slow in acting and they organized a provisional territorial government and elected a legislature anda full set of officials. Roop was named governor. Before long, however, the government organized the territory and in 1861 James W. Nye was appointed governor. Honey Lake Valley was put into Lake county, Nevada. After repeated clashes with Plumas county officials, a joint survey was made by California and Nevada and Honey Lake was found to be in Plumas county. The people of the valley asked to be set off into a new county and in 1864 the California legislature granted their request. The new county was named "Lassen." Population: 12,589. Area: 4531 square miles.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

The appeal of the Psalmist, "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me," constitutes the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Everlasting Punishment" on Sunday in all Christian Science churches, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

A Bible selection in the Lesson-Sermon includes these words of James: "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man: but every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own lust, and enticed. . . . Wherefore lay apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls. But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves."

One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, states: "Sorrow for wrong-doing is but one step towards reform and the very easiest step. The next and great step required by wisdom is the test of our sincerity, —namely, reformation."

NEW MEDICAL TERMS BOOM

Pity the poor doctor who tries to keep up with the rapid advances in medical science. The field has enlarged to such an extent that the dictionary which makes its literature available embraces 1,573 pages. The new edition has added more than 5,000 words which have been created by research workers during the past few years since the previous edition was issued. Here are a few samples of the synthesized names of new things and conditions which the biologists and medical scientists have discovered recently: acalcerosis, acarbia, adiaphoria, adiposalgia, aerogram, agonadal, allobiosis, allometron, alvinolith, anatopism, angiolysin, aniseikonia, anisergy, apeidosis, auxin and axoneme. The other alphabetical divisions contain equally as impressive recruits.

SYNOPSIS

The future of the youthful and comely "Widder" Marcia Howe is a conversational tit-bit among housewives of Wilton. Eligible bachelors and widowers also are interested. Marcia has as her guest her late husband's niece, Sylvia Hayden. A stranger, on the verge of exhaustion, finds his way to Marcia's home. Secretly, he asks her to hide a package containing jewelry. She does so. Elisha Winslow, town sheriff, brings news of a jewel robbery nearby. The stranger gives his name as Stanley Heath. Sylvia discovers the jewels, and naturally believes Heath is a robber. She realizes that Marcia must have hidden them, and decides to say nothing. Marcia feels she has altogether too deep an interest in her guest, but is powerless to overcome it. Heath wires "Mrs. S. C. Heath," New York, saying he is safe. He also orders a man named Currier to come at once. Sylvia, in her room, bedecks herself with the jewels. At Marcia's approach she hides them there. Heath asks Marcia to bring them to him. They are gone! He kindly makes light of the loss. Sylvia restores the jewels to their original hiding place. Elisha Winslow, visiting Marcia, discovers the gems and has no doubt they are the stolen gems, and that Heath is the thief. Leaving the jewels, he makes plans for arresting Heath.

Elisha's mounting disapproval changed to consternation.

Turning, he faced Eleazer.

"Say, Eleazer," he faltered, "s'pose we was to make a deal on this thing. S'pose, for the time bein' I was to take over your job an' you was to take over mine. S'pose you did the arrestin'? You seem to know a sight more 'bout how to manage it than I do.

"You put on the badge; you tell the thief to stick 'em up; you put the pistol 'twixt his shoulders, or wherever you think 'twill do the most good; an' you snap the handcuffs on him. I'll see you get full credit for it. Meanwhile, if there's a fire or an undertakin' job, I'll manage 'em somehow."

Eleazer shook his head.

"That wouldn't do, 'Lish, no way in the world," he objected. "We can't go swappin' offices voted us by the town. Folks wouldn't like it. Was I, a common citizen, to shoot the criminal, I'd likely be hauled up for murder. I'm willin' to stand by you to the extent of goin' along an' keepin' you company; but you must be the one that bears the brunt of the job. You ain't told me yet none of the details of this business. If I'm goin' to help you, I'd oughter be told everything about it. Who is the criminal? An' where is he? An' how'd you come to get track of him?"

Alas, the questions were the very ones Elisha had hoped to escape answering. Nevertheless, he knew of no way to evade his confederate's curiosity.

Reluctantly, cautiously, he poured out his story and was rewarded to see the other town official gape at him, open-mouthed.

"Bless my soul," he reiterated. "Bless my soul! Who would 'a' drempt it?" he burst out when he could contain himself no longer. "Wal, I never did like that feller Heath. I suspected from the first there was somethin' wrong about him. Prob'ly he has queer eyes. You can always spot a criminal by his eye. Kinder shifty an' fishy. I understand human nature. This Heath feller, now. I understand him."

"Then p'raps you can foretell what he's likely to do when I arrest him," put in Elisha eagerly.

"I can," Eleazer nodded. "I can prophesy just about what he'll do."

"What?"

"It's better I shouldn't tell you. 'Twouldn't be wise. We must do our duty no matter what comes of it."

Elisha's knees weakened beneath him.

"Seems to me," went on Eleazer, "that 'stead of loiterin' here discussin' the calamities of the future you'd better be gettin' on to your house. You've got to put on your other clothes. The press, most likely, will want to photograph you. Then you must hunt up your badge, your handcuffs an' all your paraphernalia. I'd better cut across the field, meantime, an' oil up my pistol. Mebbe I can fix it so-st it'll go off. I'll try an' find you some cartridges, too. I wouldn't want to stand by an' see you struck down without your havin' some slight defense, poor as 'tis."

With this dubious farewell, Eleazer bustled off across the dingle and was lost to sight.

Going to the closet, he took out his Sunday suit, shook it, and with the air of one making ready his shroud, spread it upon the bed.

Next he produced a boiled shirt, a collar, and a black tie.

It took him some time to assemble these infrequently used accessories, and he was dismayed to find no collar-button.

A collar-button was the corner-stone of his toilet—the object on which everything else depended. Should it fail to be forthcoming, the game was up. He could not administer the law without it.

Perhaps, viewing the matter from every angle, its disappearance was a fortunate, rather than an unfortunate, omen.

To grapple with an experienced criminal was suicidal. Suppose the criminal did escape? Were not lawbreakers doing so every day?

But, alas, there was Eleazer to whom he had confided the entire story!

No, there was no possibility of his backing out of the affair now and washing his hands of it. He must go through with it.

He went downstairs to hunt up his badge and handcuffs. These he kept in the drawer of the tall secretary in the sitting room. To his consternation, the drawer was empty!

And not only was it empty but it had been left open as if a marauder possessed of sticky hands had hastily abandoned it.

Unwilling to believe the articles were gone, Elisha peered feverishly into every corner the piece of furniture contained. But beyond a thick coating of dust, nothing rewarded his search.

At length, as a last resort, he reluctantly shouted for May Ellen.

"Wal, sir?"

"May Ellen, who's been explorin' this secretary of mine? Some of the things that oughter be in it, ain't," blustered he. "My handcuffs an' sheriff's badge."

"Mercy on us! You don't tell me a crime's been committed in Wilton! I guess it's the first time in all the town's history. Won't folks be agog? It'll stir up the whole community."

"You mustn't peep about this outside, May Ellen," Elisha cautioned. "Was you to, no end of harm might be done. The criminal, you see, is still at large an' we want to trap him 'fore he suspects we're after him. Now 'bout the badge an' handcuffs. You see how important 'tis I should have 'em. They was in the drawer an' the whole place is messed up an' sticky as if some person who had no business meddlin' had overhauled it."

"It's that miserable Tommy Cahoon!" interrupted May Ellen. "His mother left him an' Willie here with me a week ago when she went to Sawyer Falls shoppin'. The little monkeys must 'a' sneaked indoors when I wasn't lookin' an' took that an' the handcuffs. I'm dretful sorry. Last I saw of the imps they was out yonder under the apple trees. S'pose we have a look there."

Almost beside himself with an indignation he dared not voice, Elisha followed May Ellen out of doors.

Yes, trampled into the sodden ground lay the badge. There, too, lay the handcuffs, tightly snapped together and without a trace of a key to unlock them.

Elisha dubiously eyed the muddy objects. Well, at least, thought he, everything was not lost. He had gained time.

To wear his badge until a new pin was soldered to it was out of the question. In addition, the handcuffs were of no use at all unless a key could be found to unlock them.

As he turned to re-enter the house, Eleazer hailed him.

"I've had the devil of a time with this revolver," announced he, puffing into the yard and jauntily flourishing

"You Mustn't Peep About This Outside, May Ellen."

the weapon. Then regarding his comrade's greenish countenance, he remarked abruptly, "Say, what's the matter with you, 'Lish?"

Elisha told his story.

"Wal, if that ain't the ole Harry!" fumed Eleazer. "That's goin' to ball us all up. There's no use doin' this thing if it ain't done in bang-up style. We got to get that badge soldered an' them handcuffs unlocked 'fore another move can be made. I s'pose mebbe Nate Harlow over to Belleport could help us out."

"An' go blabbin' all over town the predicament the Wilton sheriff was in? No—sir—ee! Not if I know it. The only thing to do is to motor to Sawyer Falls an' hunt up Pete McGrath, the blacksmith. He's a wizard with tools. I never knew no job to stump him yet. He'll know what to do."

Accordingly the two men set forth on their errand.

They rode in uncomfortable silence until the white spire of the Sawyer Falls church appeared and, rounding the bend of the road, the car rolled into the town.

Around its shabby railroad station clustered a group of motor cars, a truck or two, and the usual knot of loitering men and boys.

The small shed where the forge stood was close by the tracks and as he pulled up before it, Elisha espied through its doorway not only Peter McGrath, the blacksmith, but also the rotund figure of Artie Nickerson, the Sawyer Falls station agent.

"Art's inside! Ain't that luck?" he remarked, clambering out of the car.

They went in and after the usual greetings, Elisha stated his errand.

McGrath took the handcuffs and badge to the light and examined them.

"Humph! 'Looks as if you'd been in some sort of a scrimmage," he commented. "But I'll start on 'em straight away. I ain't busy on nothin' that can't be put aside."

Elisha and Eleazer strolled over to a box and sat down to wait.

"How are you, Art?" Elisha inquired. "Didn't you have a nephew or a cousin 'sociated with a police force somewheres?"

"Bennie, you mean? Oh yes. He's a policeman out in Chicago. Just now he's laid up in the hospital, but he 'spects to be out again 'fore long. Got shot through the arm a couple of weeks ago. Winged by a stray bullet while chasin' up a guy that had broke into a store. The shrimp hit him. Luckily he didn't kill him. Ben thought he got off pretty easy."

Elisha's smile faded.

"These fellers that's at large now don't give a hang who they murder," went on the station agent affably. "They're a desperate crew. They'd as soon kill you as not. Bennie landed his man, though. He's done great work on the force. Been shot three or four times while on duty. 'Tain't a callin' I myself would choose, but he seems to get a big kick out of it."

Elisha, pale to the lips, suddenly decided he had heard enough of Bennie and shifted the subject.

"S'pose you're still goin' round in the same ole treadmill over at the station, Art," he observed.

"Yep. Same ole rut. I've had, though, a bit more telegraphin' to do of late than formerly. Know a feller over to Wilton named Heath? He's sent off several wires."

Both Elisha and Eleazer straightened up.

"Heath. Yes, indeed. He's stoppin' in town for a while."

"So I gathered. Lives in New York at one of them big hotels. He sent a wire to his wife. Leastways, I figger 'twas his wife. He signed himself 'Lovingly, Stanley,' an' addressed it to Mrs. Stanley Heath."

"You don't say! That's news to me," Elisha cried. He darted a glance at Eleazer.

Artie, gratified at seeing he had created a sensation, beamed broadly.

"'Course I ain't permitted to divulge messages that go through my hands. They're confidential. But for that I could tell you somethin' that would make your eyes pop outer their sockets."

"Somethin' about Heath?"

"Somethin' he said in a telegram."

Elisha had an inspiration.

"S'pose I was to ask you officially?" he suggested. "S'pose it's important for me to know what was in that message? S'pose I demanded you tell me in the name of the law? I'm askin' you as sheriff of the town of Wilton."

"Oh, that's different. The wire was just sent to a friend. The part that astonished me was its beginnin'. It ran somethin' like this:

"'Safe on Cape with my lady. Shall return with her later.'"

"What interested me," droned Artie, "was who this lady could be. Heath, apparently, is a married man. What business has he taggin' after some Wilton woman an' totin' her back to New York with him when he goes?"

"He ain't got no business doin' it," Eleazer shouted. "He's a blackguard—that's what he is! But don't you worry, Artie. He ain't goin' to put no such scurvy trick over on any Wilton woman. Me an' 'Lish'll see to that. How much more tinkerin' have you got to do on them trinkets, Pete? The sheriff an' me is in a hurry to get home."

"You'll have to give me a good half hour more."

"That'll mean we won't fetch up at Wilton 'til after dark," Eleazer fretted.

"There's no use goin' up in the air an' rilin' Pete all up, Eleazer," Elisha intervened. "We'll just have to be patient an' put off what we was plannin' to do until tommorow. I reckon mornin'll be a better time, anyway. Certainly 'twill do just as well."

"Mebbe," Eleazer grumbled. "Still, I'm disappointed. Wal, that bein' the case, s'pose you an' me step over to the drug store while we're hangin' round an' do them errands we mentioned."

Elisha agreed.

A faint flush had crept back into his cheeks and his eyes had regained their light of hope.

He had wrested from Fate another twelve hours of life, and life was sweet.

The House of Rothschild

The House of Rothschild was governed in its business activities by two well-defined policies. The first was the determination of the five brothers to conduct the whole of their business in constant co-operation, thus carrying out the dying command of their father. The second was never to strain after excessive profit and, as far as human foresight could achieve it, to leave nothing to chance. Their watchword was: "Be moderate and never lose sight of the goal."

CALIFORNIA NEWS OF THE WEEK

A professor's experiment wakened the whole city of Stockton recently, as A. T. Bawden, head of College of Pacific's chemistry department and some of his students took a mysterious substance into a vacant lot at night to see if it would explode. It did, the flash being visible miles away. The professor believes he has discovered a new, cheap, explosive of "high shattering power."

"There will be no world war. There are too many great heads and hearts and too great a hunger for peace." These are the words of General Evangeline Booth, head of the Salvation Army, the organization founded by her father, as she was interviewed upon her afrival at Los Angeles for the Army's Western Territorial Congress.

During the last three weeks over 20,000 persons left relief rolls to take WPA work, says Frank Y. McLaughlin, state WPA director. Meanwhile Washington WPA headquarters announces its new "W-men," sleuths whose job it will be to track down Works Progress Administration grafters.

All Chambers of Commerce, Kiwanis Clubs and American Legion posts in California are receiving copies of a resolution adopted at a joint meeting of these Healdsburg organizations, which are petitioning Governor Merriam and the legislature to ban the name of the Communist Party from California ballots.

High winds which reached 50 miles an hour velocity spread sparks and fire over a wide southern California area last week, causing over $5,000,000 in damages. Hardest hit were the fashionable Malibu beach resort district, home of many movie stars, and Altadena, on the foothills of the Sierra Madre mountains.

To survey timber resources on California Indian reservations, D. E. Harbison of the U. S. Indian Service, has arrived at Sacramento, where he will make his temporary headquarters. Harbison declared that "the New Deal will be a big help to the Indians," pointing out that $1,000,000 is being spent to rehabilitate New Mexico and Arizona reservations.

State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson committed no violation of the state deposit act in placing more than $6,000,000 of Veterans Welfare Board funds on deposit without security, ruled Jess Hession, Deputy Attorney General. Question of propriety of the Treasurer's act was raised recently in connection with the investigation over missing state funds.

The "traveling court" hearing testimony on Tom Mooney's latest trial left Portland, Oregon, for Wyoming last week. At Portland, the court learned that the late Frank Oxman, who played a part in convicting Mooney, had a "bad" reputation when it came to truth and veracity, according to testimony of those who knew him. Oxman resided at Durkee, a town near Portland.

With the approval in Washington of a $3,043,120 allocation for reclamation of San Francisco's 1938 exposition site, the huge project is expected to start shortly, putting 1,200 men to work. Reclamation work will consist of filling in 400 acres of shallow bay waters adjacent to Yerba Buena Island in San Francisco Bay. After the exposition has been held, the site will become the Bay city's municipal airport.

A half million dollars in state highway funds has been made available to the Federal government, announces State Public Works Director Earl Lee Kelly, for realigning the Pacific Highway around the reservoir of the proposed Kennett Dam, part of the great Central Valleys Water Project.

Buster Keaton, frozen-faced screen comedian, has been confined to a psychopathic ward following a nervous breakdown. After an attack of influenza, the comedian became "mentally confused," his condition being aggravated by financial and domestic troubles, according to his physician. Upon hearing of the illness, his ex-wife hurried to his bedside.

Transmission of 285,000 volts of electricity over a small wire, less than an inch and a half in diameter, is now possible as a result of experiments being conducted by Stanford University engineers. The engineers have been designing power lines to be used in carrying electricity 275 miles from Boulder Dam to Los Angeles.

Using tricks he learned from his cowboy father, the late Will Rogers, Jimmy Rogers won the calf-roping contest at the Victorville Rodeo. He threw his calf in 25 seconds.

Catching up with some of his tardy appointments, Governor Frank Merriam has just appointed J. Mortimer Clark of Long Beach as state real estate commissioner. In addition, five real estate commission members have been selected by the governor. He also added three names to the state relief commission.

"Well Begun's Half Done" When Making Your House Frock

There was never a truer phrase than that, and how well it applies here! For before you know it your dress is cut and ready to stitch. This pattern is so easy to follow. There's everything new about the lines of this fetching house frock, with its contrasting surplice facing and doesn't it look like a different dress when buttoned up to the neck, see small sketch—with those enormous buttons? When household chores are finished, button up the deep pointed surplice and wear the frock to market. It's smart enough. Try it in colorful novelty cotton or gingham.

Pattern 9614 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 36 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

THE REASON WHY

Chatty—Oh, he's so romantic. When he addresses me he always calls me "Fair Lady."

Catty—Force of habit, my dear. He's a street car conductor.—The Sunday School Herald.

By All Means

Father—Well, son, how did you get along at school today?

Bobby—Pa, my physiology book says conversation at meals should be of a pleasant character. Let's talk about something else.

In the Gulch

"I hear some gang men came around last night."

"Yes," answered Mesa Bill. "They caused serious disappointment. When we held 'em up, there wasn't eleven dollars in the crowd."

Margin

"Do you ever trade on a margin?"

"You might say so," said the small speculator, "although it seems more like a ragged edge."

How She Saw It

He—They've dropped their anchor again.

She—Serves them right. They had it dangling over the side all morning.

3RD OF FAMILIES CHILDLESS

One in every three married couples in the United States now is classed as childless by the census bureau at Washington. The last exact count was made in 1930, when the percentage of couples without children stood at 31.9. Estimates based on new studies place the present figure at more than 33 per cent. These estimates apply to so-called "normal" families. They do not include families broken by divorce or death. Of 23,352,000 American married couples in 1930, 7,447,328 couples had no children. Those couples having one child numbered 5,254,863, or 22.5 per cent. Those having two children each numbered, 4,246,459; three children each, 2,650,730, and four or more children, 3,753,610.—Capper's Weekly.

Beliakan, a city which existed up to the Fifth century in the Steppes, is being excavated. An ancient irrigation system was found so well preserved that it could be used today.

Reaction of Motives

Motives by excess reverse their very nature, and instead of exciting, stun and stupefy the mind.—Coleridge.

"My baking gets more bouquets—and I save, too!"

SAYS MRS. C. H. McINTOSH, 854 EASTWOOD AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILL.

Lowest Prices Ever on Calumet Baking Powder!

"IT'S certainly good news that Calumet is selling at new low prices," Mrs. McIntosh says. "I do a lot of baking, and when I can get a full pound can of reliable Calumet for only 25c, I'm pretty pleased with myself!"

Her son Jack settles down to some of Mother's famous coffee cake, and pays for it with a big smile.

AND LOOK AT THE NEW CAN! A simple twist...and the Easy-Opening Top lifts off. No delay, no spilling, no broken fingernails!

WHY IS CALUMET DIFFERENT from other baking powders? Why do you have to use only one level teaspoonful of Calumet to a cup of sifted flour in most recipes?

Because Calumet combines two distinct leavening actions. A quick action for the mixing bowl—set free by liquid. A slower action for the oven—set free by heat.

New! Big 10¢ Can!...

Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, is now selling at the lowest prices ever...The new-size can is yours for a dime! And the regular price of the Full-Pound Can is only 25c! A product of General Foods.

ROOM EIGHT POETRY

These poems were written by children from Miss Lipp's room They had some help in the construction.

"Little girl, little girl,
Where do you go?
To a wee garden
Where flowers grow.
Little girl, little girl,
What did you see?
A little robin
Up in a tree."

P.-T. A. PRIZE TRIP

Celebrating the winning of the P.-T. A. contest for enrolling the most members for the fall term, the children in the low fourth grade in Miss Neal's room visited the Fair Tuesday with their $2 prize.

The class is studying Mexico, its people, habits, and customs, so the children spent a most interesting hour seeing an exhibit of three hundred tinted photographs which are the work of Luis Marquez of Mexico City. In connection with the pictures the children were shown a display of Mexican costumes of various periods in the history of that country. Pedro J. Caballero brought this collection to the Exposition for its first showing in the United States. The exhibit has been pronounced a "realistic trip thru Mexico" by critics.

Many of the costumes in the display were worn by the Mexican Indians in their native dances in the state of Oaxaca, which provided background for many of the photographs.

Other buildings which the class visited were the Federal, Water Palace, Transportation, Wells Fargo exhibit, Food and Beverage Palace and the Midway.

CORONADO FERRY TRIP

Mrs. Karl's second graders enjoyed a trip around the harbor which was climaxed with eight rides on the Coronado ferry. For at least fifteen children it was the first time they had been on the ferry.

Of special interest to the children was the distance across, time of crossing, pilot house, and life preservers. An additional thrill was provided by a school of porpoises playing in the bay.

The trip was made possible by courtesy of parents who furnished cars for transportation and accompanied the children on the ferry. These were Mrs. Chadwick. Mrs. Cleveland. Mrs. Appiegate, Mrs. Thomas. Mrs. Shields, Mrs. Burdette, and Mr. and Mrs. John Welsh.

PLAYHOUSE

The first graders in Miss Steddom's room are making a playhouse out of wood and cardboard. The furniture is made out of boxes.

The class made several visits to houses under construction here in the neighborhood, and learned what materials are needed for the building of a house, and what tools the workman uses, which leads into their study of "How the Family Lives at Home".

GROCERY STORE

Room 1 is building a grocery store for which they are making labels and money, and are working on clay fruit and vegetables for the store.

TRANSPORTATION STUDY

The high six class in room 14 is making pictures depicting the history of transportation, which will be placed all around the room. Some of the pictures show a great deal of promise.

Some members of the class are doing research work to determine what pictures will best show the steady development of transportation up to the present day.

CLASS LEARNS ABOUT FORESTS

Last Friday, the children from Miss McCabe's room went to the Exposition. They are studying National Parks and forestry, so they visited the exhibits of special interest to them. These included the CCC exhibit, the State building, and the Standard Oil building where they saw beautiful pictures of the National Parks. They also visited the Ford building and the children were given rides on the Roads of the Pacific in the new Ford cars.

The members of the class are especially grateful to Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Kraft, Mrs. Parks, Mrs. Albrecht, Mr. Austin and Mr. Klosterman for the use of their cars in making the trip.

STUDYING SHELTER

Thru excursions, stories, and pictures, the L3 class in Miss Barnes' room have gained some knowledge of how our homes are built, what materials are used, and what workers build the homes.

At present they are studying primitive homes. Their interests have centered around the Indian Pueblo. After studying for several weeks about the Pueblo Indian they felt that they were ready to visit the Indian Village at the Exposition.

Last Friday afternoon the children visited the Exposition where they saw Model Town and the Indian Village. They found many things of interest such as the Indians' clothes, their ceremonial dances, how their homes are built, and some of their craftsmanship. The Pueblo home of the Indian makes an interesting contrast with our homes of today.
